

Walter Reed Army Medical Center, DC Earth Day 2005

On Earth Day, 2005, Walter Reed Army Medical Center created a display for all ages. The display, mainly focused on recycling and conserving energy contained many important facts and tips on conservation.

Along with the display, the Garrison Environmental Office sent out a post wide email as well as an article for the installation newspaper, The Stripe, again highlighting the importance of recycling and energy conservation.

Overall it was very successful, people became more aware of how much can be recycled and how important it is to both recycle and buy recycled products.

Below is a picture of the display.
